JEFF TYMOSCHUK, composer for film, television & games

In 2002, he scored his first videogame, "James Bond: Nightfire" for Electronic Arts, which went on to win the 2003 Game Audio Network Guild (GANG) Award for Best Arrangement of a Non-Original Theme and Best Interactive Music. In 2003 he provided additional music for "The Simpsons Hit and Run" from Radical Entertainment/Vivendi Universal Games, and wrote additional music to "James Bond: Everything or Nothing", supplementing 24 composer Sean Callery's score. Shortly after, he scored, "Pursuit Force: Extreme Justice" and then went on to produce the music for the Deathspank trilogy. That EA game series received rave reviews from gamer blogs and sites all across the world. MSXbox-World.com commented, "...special mention goes to Jeff Tymoschuk whose original music is absolutely stellar."

"Sleeping Dogs" an action, undercover cop game developed by United Front Games in collaboration with Square Enix London Studios recently garnered 6 nominations at the 2013 Canadian Video Game Awards, including "Best Original Music". Jeff has since also scored the sequel, "Sleeping Dogs: Triad Wars".

Jeff's theatrical film release "Leprechaun: Origins" by auteur director and long-time collaborator, Zach Lipovsky received much acclaim at Comi-Con 2014. He also scored the WWE/20th Century Fox film, "The Marine 4: Moving Target". Currently, he is scoring the Aurora Teagarden Mysteries wheel for Hallmark.
